It's the same racket as solar panels used to be they'd charge $15000 (not counting the panel cost) for two days of labor for team of 3 guys. Powerwall IMO should be free to install. It's stupid easy. But this is early days. I bought a $1000 generator and had solar put in, have only needed the genny once in 2 years.

A Texas resident told me he had no problem getting Tesla to install a 2nd Powerwall months after installing his solar panel system, but in Silicon Valley, last month, Tesla refused to install a 2nd Powerwall without adding more panels while dozens of certified installers refused to add to an existing system they didn't install--so that was a 3
