Abstract The development of two-dimensional (2D) high-performance electrode materials is the key to new advances in the fields of energy storage and conversion. As a novel family of 2D layered materials, MXenes possess distinct structural, electronic and chemical properties that enable vast application potential in many fields, including batteries, supercapacitor and ???

However, the reversible hydrogen storage capacity was 3.42 wt%, which is obtained from Kubas-type interactions. Also,  $Ti_2N(OH)_2$  MXene achieved reversible hydrogen storage capacity up to 2.66 wt%. Hydrogen storage properties of 2D  $Cr_2C$  MXene were also studied using density functional theory [85].
